

New milestone in the ATOSS success story: Munich-based software specialist now included in the SDAX

Munich, June 22, 2020

As of today, ATOSS Software AG (ISIN DE0005104400) has been admitted to the SDAX index administered by Deutsche Börse AG. Given the criteria for admission, ATOSS now ranks among the 165 largest stocks included in the Prime Standard. This means that in addition to the high transparency requirements imposed by the Stock Exchange, ATOSS also satisfies the decisive criteria in terms of market capitalization and trading volumes.

Andreas F. J. Obereder, company founder and the majority shareholder in ATOSS, is delighted at the company's admission to the SDAX: "This is an important milestone in the corporate history of ATOSS, as well as superb confirmation by the exchange of our long-term corporate strategy! At the same time, it is also an incentive for us to not only pursue profitable growth - a course we have charted for the 15th record year in succession - but to stay this course in future. We look forward to adhering firmly to our policy of active capital market communication, as well as further heightening the profile ATOSS enjoys among international investors."

ATOSS shares, which have been listed on the stock market since March 21, 2000, have in recent years put on a very strong performance and substantially exceeded important indices such as the SDAX and the DAX software subsector.
